

Marija Pfeifer is a professor of internal medicine and endocrinology (Faculty of Medicine, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia). In the past she served as head of the Department of Endocrinology and as the medical director of the University Medical Centre Ljubljana. Currently, she works at a private clinic for endocrinology, MD Medicina, Ljubljana.

Her main fields of interest are pituitary diseases, especially GHD; cardiometabolic risk in PCOS and in male functional hypogonadism; vitamin D. She currently leads the Working group for the preparation of Slovenian National Guidelines on Vitamin D at the Ministry of health, Slovenia.

She served in the European Society of Endocrinology Executive, Education, Nomination and Congress committees. She was awarded the ESE special recognition award in 2019 for her educational activities in ESE. She is the past president of the Slovenian Endocrine Society and a regular member of the Slovenian Medical Academy.